

Technical information on data protection

The site does not write cookies, does not use tracking and does not use any analysis tools.

No data is stored except what the web server writes in the server log. This is the usual log data from Nginx. The server runs on Debian GNU/Linux and for the logfiles the Syslog Daemon with Logrotate is used. The logs are stored for 7 days and then deleted automatically without any backup, first in, first out. I only look at the logfiles if I notice a problem. Otherwise, I am not interested in who visited the site with which browser, because I have better things to do with my time than to look at any statistics.

There are no embedded social media links or plugins on these pages. If you want to contact me, you have to use the old fashioned way, just write an email to tom@isnix.de. There is no contact form.

The site is only accessible via SSL (https), unencrypted access is not possible.

First and foremost, this site is only for me. This is my personal note box, in which I collect more or less useful things so that I don't forget them. So that I can do this from everywhere, I use DokuWiki on a webserver.

If you can use some of it, everything is free! (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-sa/4.0/>).
